This Week's Intro

hitch-hiking blues and wonders

Dear all

It came out in two recent conversations regards my hitch hiking years during the nineties. This thing, that that was the time that I actually had lots of.. time.

Something of that is evident in The Papers, and especially the drawings from this January 1997 edition. Not that each paper took me hours. But with every line and dot, every word and sentence, i was surrounded by ample spaces of time.

It was already the age of the personal computer, but i wrote and drew by hand. The electrical shaver long existed, but i shaved by cutting my beard with scissors (it took some time!). I washed my clothes by hand. I had no car, I walked and took minibus taxis, I hitch-hiked. Many idle hours were spent waiting for a lift,

I had time to think, I had time to feel. And it was not always easy and pleasant. It was the time of wonders and of the very deep blues too, as time exposes sediments that one rather do not want to stir

So take a little time, for these time-rich expressions..

Regards
Francois
